

ABSTRACT

A method for scheduling and usage of satellite bandwidth wherein data is transmitted to an artificial intelligence model for analysis and assigned a ranking. An event resource allocation model analyzes the ranking and determines how to compress the associated video. The event resource allocation model also determines when to compress the remotely stored video and transmit via satellite to a central data center where the video may be reviewed.

5